DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This frame house is situated in a hilly, semi-wooded area on Rt. 55 in the town of Miller. The house faces northwest. It is a two story structure in an "L" configuration having a rectangular main block with a gable end front wing protruding from the west side. A bay window, extending on both stories with three windows and a decoratively shingled gable end top is located at the west end of the facade. A wooden porch supported by turned posts with turned balustrades and stick bracketing covers the facade and the northeast elevations of the front wing. A single story shed addition is located along the rear, southeast, elevation. The facade entrance set to the north side of the bay has a transom.

The house has a central brick chimney and an exterior brick chimney at the southwest elevation. One over one sash windows with drip cap molding light the house. Pointed arched windows are located in the gable ends. Narrow weatherboards framed cornerboards cover the house. Asphalt shingles cover the roof of the house with raised seam metal on the porch roof.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Though more decorative and in better shape than most, this house is a common western Maryland type. Houses of the rectangular configuration with a facade wing were built in Garrett county from the late nineteenth through the early twentieth centuries. This house was built by Kitty Walters, circa 1900.
